Sandra

I am not sure if my comments should be directed here. I had thought Bobby Johnson was the contact however your name and e mail was listed in the IDL website. So I send my comments to you. Please forward if needed

I attended the rule making meeting this past Tuesday regarding IDAPA 20.07.02. I was only able to be there for a short while. My concern based on the portion I attended is thus. The percentage of land owners to give their consent to these wells is as it stands is 55%. This does not represent 55% of the people to be effected by the wells. 100% of the land owners will be effected. 100% of the mineral rights owners will be effected., 100% of the renters will be effected. 100% of the tourist will be effected. This does not even include the animals, plants, children, and so on. The 55% of land owners only represents a small portion of the beings effected by this drilling. Fracking is already occurring and people are noticing the quality of their well water effected. We NEED water. It is required for people to live. Oil and Gas are not. Please consider increasing the percentage of landowners needed for concensus to a much higher number. I would also ask that the community be able to have some honest and weighted say on this issue. i sincerely hope that we continue to be a state with fresh clean water to drink and not one of "water water every where and not a drop to drink." Water is precious. Please consider this.

Thank You
